Bloopers from Teachers

What's an embarrassing moment that's happened to you while teaching?

Emily: One day I was substituting for a High School Special Education teacher in a Life Skills classroom. I was walking around the room making sure things were going smoothly when I saw a high school boy I hadn't met before. He was about 18 years old and in a wheelchair and was sitting by himself in the corner of the room. He had a more serious disorder and couldn't communicate verbally with anyone. I decided that, since I was working with no one else at the moment, I would spend some time making him feel loved. I introduced myself and said that I would love to read a book to him! I picked out a book and went through it, trying to make it interesting and fun, all the while giving him plenty of smiles and attention. All of the sudden one of the teachers came by and asked what I was doing. "I'm just reading and talking to Michael," I said. "Do you think he enjoys it?" She laughed out loud and said, "Probably not." That's when I found out he was blind and deaf. All I can say is that it's the thought that counts....!

Mrs. Sutton: I learned last week that I really needed to slow down when giving answers. One of my third graders asked me what a spade was. I quickly answered that it was another name for a shovel or a type of a shovel. They said ok, and went back to reading their novel. After thinking for a minute I realized that there was no "shovel" in that story but rather the word was used in a different way. In their story, which was about a cat, the father says, "we should have got that chat "spade". -That lead to a whole other conversation, and new vocabulary word to think about.

BRAIN BUSTER

The genius student... (extra problem for the break!)
A professor had 3 students. One of them was a genius and he decided to test that idea.
He told them: "I will give each of you a cap that can be black or white. You can see the caps of the other students but not your own cap!"
And then he put a white cap upon each of them.
Then he said: "When you see one or more white caps, raise your hand!"
Of course all three students raised their hand. Then the professor asked the students to determine what color their own cap would be.
It was quiet for a while and then one of the students said: "I know the answer, I have a white cap!"
How did this genius student know it?

Answers after the break!

HIDDEN CAMERA

Exodus 15:2

The Lord is my strong defender;
He is the one who has saved me.
He is my God, and I will praise him, my father's God, and I will sing about his greatness.

FACTS

The ant can lift 50 times its own weight and can pull 30 times its own weight.

A present study at Harvard has shown that eating chocolate can actually help you live longer.

Did you know, if you chew gum while peeling onions it will keep you from crying.

Impact:
When's a time you've seen
God at work in your life?

Morgan: When I feel like complaining, which is about everyday, I always try to remember to look at the bright side and at the good in people. The song that always comes to mind is the "Do everything without complaining" song which was inspired by the verse in Thessalonians. So next time you feel like complaining remember the song and don't be afraid to sing out loud.

Megan: Lately God has been bringing joy into my life whenever I've been feeling sad.

Jemimah: Recently I had to go to Port Moresby to take an exam but my visa got messed up but it looks like I'm going to be able to take the exam here, even though normally they wouldn't allow it.

Levi: God has worked in my life by allowing me to come back to PNG.
